

Fair is foul and foul is fair

[Macbeth] unseamed him from the knave to the chops, and fixed his head upon our battlements.

Brave Macbeth! Worthy Thane

Stars, hide your fires,
Let not light see my black and deep desires.

I do fear thy nature, It is too full of the milk of human kindness to catch the nearest way.

Come you spirits that tend on mortal thoughts, unsex me here, And fill me from the crown to the toe top-full of direst cruelty.

Look like the innocent flower, But be the serpent under it.

We will proceed no further in this business... I have bought golden opinions from all sorts of people.

What beast was it then, that made you break this enterprise to me? When you durst do it, then you were a man.

And oftentimes, to win us to our harm, The instruments of darkness tell us truths,

False face must hide what the false heart doth know.

Or art thou but a dagger of the mind, a false creation, proceeding from the heat oppressed brain.

'Tis the eye of childhood that fears a painted devil.

Will great Neptune's ocean wash this blood clean from my hand?

My hands are of your colour; but I shame to wear a heart so white.

O full of scorpions is my mind, dear wife.

O proper stuff! This is the very painting of your fear.... A woman's story at a winter's fire.

Blood will have blood.

Macbeth! Macbeth! Macbeth! Beware Macduff!

Be bloody, bold and resolute. Laugh to scorn, for none of woman born shall harm Macbeth.

Macbeth shall never vanquished be, until Great Birnam Wood to High Dunsinane hill shall come against him.

Out damned spot, out I say!

Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player, that struts and frets his hour upon the stage, And then is heard no more. It is a tale told by an idiot.... Signifying nothing.

Turn Hell Hound, turn!

Damned to him that cries Hold! Enough!

dead butcher and his fiend-like queen!

Context Notes: William Shakespeare and the Jacobean Era (1606)

- The play was written by William Shakespeare, and was first performed around 1606
- Shakespeare's Time – Shakespeare wrote at the time of two monarchs: Queen Elizabeth I and James I. The plays he wrote during the period of Queen Elizabeth are generally happy and joyful, reflecting the mood at the time. However, darker plays such as Macbeth were written in the era of James I, which was far more unstable. For example, the gunpowder plot was the year before where a group of men were accused of treason and Guy Fawkes was executed. Regicide (killing a king) was considered one of the worst sins possible.
- James I: 1606 was early in the reign of James I, who was an admirer of Shakespeare's plays, and a patron of his acting company. It is doubtless, therefore, that Shakespeare had the king in mind when writing a play about Macbeth, a figure from Scottish ancestry. Furthermore, King James's family claimed to have descended from a historical figure named Banquo.
- The Divine Right of Kings: Divine Right asserts that monarchs were appointed from God above, and that any attempt to question them was to question God himself. This was a widely-held view at the time. King James I often quoted divine right to cement his place on the throne. A play involving a good, 'God-given' king, and the demise of a king-slayer would no doubt have gone down well with King James at the time.
- The Role of Women: Despite the strength of Elizabeth I's reign, society at the time was patriarchal – women were considered inferior to men. Women belonged to their fathers (or brothers if their fathers had died) and then their husbands. They were not permitted to own land or enter most professions. They were instead expected to bear children, and be gentle and womanly. Lady Macbeth would therefore be at odds with what was expected of women.
- Witches and the Supernatural: At this time, belief in witches and the supernatural was extremely strong, and many so-called 'witches' were burnt at the stake. King James had an intense interest in the supernatural and had published a book called 'demonologie' that catalogued the supernatural that was thought to exist at the time and he also blamed witches for a terrible sea storm that took some of his ships and almost killed his fiancé. More witches were accused and killed during the reign of King James than any other monarch. There is no doubt, therefore, that some of the ideas in the play would have been taken very seriously, such as the witches prophecies, Macbeth being seemingly 'possessed' and his vivid hallucinations.
- Healthcare and Medicine: Healthcare and medicine were not as advanced in Shakespeare's age as they are today – there were numerous ailments and diseases that were not yet understood. Furthermore, there were many wars in which scores of men were killed. Therefore, death was a much more frequent thought for people at the time. The high death count in the play would therefore seem slightly more ordinary.

Dramatic Devices in Macbeth		Features of a Tragedy in Macbeth
Dramatic Irony	't is a peerless kinsman. Duncan trusts Macbeth. The audience knows that Macbeth is plotting Duncan's murder.	Tragic Hero - A main character cursed by fate and a tragic flaw (Macbeth).	possessed of
Soliloquy	This supernatural soliciting cannot be ill, cannot be good. Macbeth's soliloquy reveals his inner torment.	Hamartia - The fatal character flaw of the tragic hero (ambition).

Themes – A theme is an idea or message that runs throughout a text.

- Unchecked Ambition: The tale of Macbeth ruthlessly exposes the dangers of ambition when it is not held by moral constraints. Macbeth from a brave and loyal Scottish general into a murderous tyrant. Lady Macbeth is another example of this theme, as she is with the acts that she and Macbeth have committed to fuel their ambition, and so commits suicide. Ambition turns unable to deal
- Fate vs Free Will: Throughout the play, the audience is frequently forced to question the notion of fate vs free will – does the story pan out the way that it does because it was pre-ordained, or because of the actions that Macbeth chose to take? Macbeth fervently attempts to fight the negative aspects of his fate, and yet it is these very actions (his free will) that cause the predetermined downfall (fate)
- Gender, Masculinity and Femininity Lady Macbeth manipulates her husband by questioning his masculinity, as he originally murder King Duncan for the throne. She states that she wishes she could be 'unsexed' so as to give her bravery to commit the Masculinity is frequently associated with raw aggression, and femininity with weakness and kindness. declines to deed.
- Inversion of the Natural Order Wherever the natural order is disturbed in Macbeth (the three supernatural witches, the murder of a king) disorder and chaos soon follow. There is only peace when the natural order is restored (Malcolm is seated on the throne). In line with the beliefs of King James, through Macbeth Shakespeare expresses that the inversion of the natural order is dangerous and destructive.

Equivocation: This is when someone uses ambiguous (unclear) language to conceal the truth or to avoid committing oneself; not really lying, saying something that is true, but also not quite true...

Main Characters – Consider what Shakespeare intended through his characterisation of each of the below...
Macbeth – Macbeth is the lead protagonist of the play. He is introduced as a Scottish general who is thought to be a brave and strong soldier. However, he is easily persuaded to commit the murder of a king that he loves. He becomes a tyrannical and destructive king, who responds to all threats (including his own insecurities) through violence and murder.	Lady Macbeth – Macbeth's wife, an extremely ambitious woman who lusts for power. At the beginning of the play, she seems stronger than Macbeth, urging and aiding him to kill Duncan. Later in the play, however, she becomes racked with guilt and madness, proving unable to come to terms with what they have done. Her conscience affects her to such a degree that she eventually commits suicide.	First Scene: Act I Scene III	Final Scene: Act V Scene VIII
Duncan – Duncan is the kind and loved King of Scotland who Macbeth murders in order to fulfil his ambition and the witches prophecy. Duncan is a virtuous King, who is both compassionate and rational – he forms a stark contrast with Macbeth as king. When Duncan dies, order in Scotland is shattered. It is only restored when his son, Malcolm eventually takes the throne.	Macduff – A Scottish nobleman who is dubious and hostile towards Macbeth's reign from the beginning. His wife and young son are murdered by Macbeth. Macduff leads the battle against Macbeth's tyrannical reign, eventually becoming the man who kills Macbeth (in line with the witch's prophecy as he was not of 'woman born.') In doing so, he helps Malcolm to the throne.	First Scene: Act I Scene II	Final Scene: Act II Scene I
The Three Witches – The witches represent trickery, manipulation and the supernatural. They use charms, spells and prophecies to prompt Macbeth into murdering Duncan. There is some ambivalence over how much of their power comes from supernatural abilities, as opposed to knowing the weaknesses of their victim. In any case, they take pleasure in toying with human lives and emotions.	Banquo – Banquo is a brave and noble gentleman who is a friend and fellow soldier to Macbeth. Banquo is also given prophecies by the witches, but unlike Macbeth, he chooses not to act on them. After being murdered, Banquo's ghost returns to haunt Macbeth, causing him a great deal of fright, and reminding him of the path he chose not to take. In accordance with the witches' prophecies, Banquo's descendants later take their place on the throne.	First Scene: Act I Scene III	Final Scene: Act III Scene IV

Throughout the play, Macbeth goes from being a 'worthy' thane with 'golden opinions' to a 'hell hound' and 'dead butcher with a fiend-like queen'. Macbeth risks, and loses, everything.

Authorial Purpose: Why did Shakespeare write this play? Consider the context!

- To entertain: start with a battle, throw in blood and gore and sprinkle in a generous heaping of deception and Jacobean shock factor – the inclusion and power of the witches would have been shocking and genuinely quite frightening in this era where people were accused of witchcraft and put to death often.
- To garner favour with the Crown and keep the theatres open: Macbeth, who commits regicide, loses everything when he is not loyal to his monarch. A play that shows a man not only die a gruesome death, but perhaps more importantly, lose his 'golden opinions' and reputation, would have been a welcome plot to James and also served as a warning to the people who tried to commit treason. The Gunpowder plot would have been fresh in people's minds as would the belief that upsetting the natural order would have dire consequences.
